INTRODUCTION

This book presents extensive material primarily related to economics, which includes an analysis of global economic and financial crises, their classification and description, as well as currency and banking crises. The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the economies of the United States and Russia is discussed. Various types of banking risks and the gold reserves of countries are described. An analysis of the banking systems of the United States and Russia is provided, as well as the reasons for inflation and deflation. Additionally, the book includes an analysis of the GDP and population of the United States and Russia, along with a description of how these two countries overcame economic crises. A large number of illustrations, including colored ones, allow readers to clearly see the changes in the parameters under consideration over the years.

In the second part of the book, the author presents his vision of the theory of economic crises, which expands our understanding of this area of science. This section includes tables and diagrams showing various scenarios of economic development, both for the country and its population. The book also describes the types of deformation of economic structures after they are subjected to external and internal pressures.

In the third part, the author proposes using the theory of automatic control for a country's exit from an economic crisis. This section provides a description of its main characteristics and presents a diagram of the automatic control system for managing an economic crisis. Descriptions of the Stabilization Fund of the Russian Federation and the National Wealth Fund of Russia are also included.

At the end of the book, readers can find 27 appendices, which will be especially useful for students in their coursework, articles, and theses.

The author expresses sincere gratitude to the sponsor of the KAF, whose financial support made the publication of this book possible.

The book is dedicated to my son Mikhail and grandson Stepan, as well as to the bright memory of my parents and older brother.
